

Sarah Butler: School Cafeteria Milk Break

SB: I was the roll maker. [laughter] I was the roll maker and the dessert maker.

ECS: And I understand you were good at it, too. That's why everybody remembers you.

SB: Well, I tried to be, I tried to be.

ECS: Tried to be. [laughter]

SB: I like good food, and I don't like to serve food that's not good. And we would make corn bread muffins, and when they would have, you know then it went through the twelfth grade, and we had all these larger children, and they would have a milk break in the mornings, and we would make corn bread muffins. They would come down and get their milk and eat corn bread muffins.

ECS: Well, every child needs a snack.

SB: Oh, they enjoyed that better than anything. That corn bread muffin and that milk.